RED UKRAINE TROOPS TRAP 150,000 NAZIS

First and Second Soviet Armies Finally Join Hands South of Kiev

(By Associated Press) LONDON, Feb. 3.—In a triumphant order of the day, Marshal Stalin announced today the joining of the First and Second Ukrainian front, trapping 150,000 German divisions, after the German high command had acknowledged the loss of Lutsck (Luck) and Rovno in old Poland.

Stalin proclaimed the capture of Smela, rail center in the Dnieper bend, and said the two mighty Red armies of Gen. Nikolai Astin and Gen. Ivan S. Koven had made gains of up to 45 miles in a 100-mile break-through of the German lines.

"As a result of these operations troops of the Second and First Ukrainian fronts joined up in the area of Zvenigorodka and Shpolia and thus closed a ring of encirclement around an enemy group operating north of this line, numbering nine infantry and one tank divisions," Stalin announced in his proclamation, broadcast from Moscow.

Germans Admit Loss

Stalin did not mention Lutsck, 70 miles inside the pre-war Polish frontier, or Rovno, 30 miles west of the old border. Evacuation of these places had been admitted earlier in a sweeping acknowledgment of losses by the German high command, broadcast in the daily German magazine.

To the north, meanwhile, the Russians had reached the Narova river within Estonia.

In the course of the Ukraine offensive, Stalin announced, "our troops captured more than 300 populated places. These included the towns of Zvenigorodka, Shpolia, Smela, Boguslav, Kanev and the large railway junctions of Dovrinskaya, Svetkova and Moronovka."

Evacuation of Smela had been admitted by the Germans last Saturday.

The Nazi withdrawal from Lutsck was surprising, since last previous reports from this sector had placed the fighting in the area of Rovno, 40 miles to the east, and there had been no indication Lutsck was menaced.

May Flee Into Bessarabia

Evacuation of Lutsck indicated Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's Ukrainian army had advanced 50 miles in a few days and was in a position to turn the German lines all along the lower Dnieper river and throw the Nazis into Bessarabia, part of Turn to RED UKRAINE, Page 8.

WHERE U. S. FORCES HIT JAPANESE

A TREMENDOUS AIR ARMADA and strong supporting forces are carrying the fight to the enemy in the Marshall islands, approximately 2,600 miles from Tokyo. The Jap radio declared that American forces have landed in the atolls and the reports have been confirmed by American naval spokesmen. (International)

Believe Thousands Of Japs Now Isolated In Marshalls

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The bold, massive stroke of Pacific forces into the heart of the Marshall islands apparently has isolated thousands of Japanese troops which now may be captured at leisure or left to die of starvation.

These troops are pocketed on the chain of atolls which form the eastern limits of the Marshall group and in which the principal enemy bases are located: Wotje, Jaluit and Maloelap. They are believed to be heavily garrisoned, despite losses to steady American naval and air bombardment, for it was logical the Japanese should have expected an assault on that line.

This fact gave special significance to the statement by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, last night that the attack on Kwajalein "took the enemy completely by surprise."

The Japanese were both surprised and thrown off balance. And since what is happening in the Marshalls can well be repeated in the Caroline islands—next probable objective on the road to the Philippines—it may be their whole defense strategy in the Central Pacific area has been disoriented.

The attack on the Marshalls already is coming to be regarded as one of the most brilliantly conceived and executed operations of the war. Judged by reports of "moderate losses" thus far, it is gaining enormously important objectives at a cost relatively much lower than that of conquest of Tarawa, in the Gilberts two months ago.

Pending official comment on the way the attack was developed, the assumption is the lessons of Tarawa were applied fully. This may account in part for the fact that while Tarawa was a frontal attack, the conquest of the Marshalls shapes up tactically as a flanking operation.

Admiral Nimitz and his staff apparently had two grand alternatives. They could strike directly at the Wotje-Jaluit-Maloelap atoll nearest Tarawa and other American bases in the Gilberts, or they could, if they had sufficient strength, neutralize those atolls and strike behind them, at one stroke isolating them and gaining an advanced position.

Having at their disposal the most massive amphibious force ever assembled, they chose the latter course and the Japs, obviously expecting them to choose the former were caught off-guard.

While much heavy fighting remains, conquest of the Marshall is assured and is expected to have enormous effect on the rest of the Pacific war.

Kwajalein affords excellent airfield and harbor facilities from which the Pacific force can prepare for the next blow at the Carolines, in the center of which the enemy's naval bastion, Truk, is located.

The whole Marshall group is a major factor in opening a sea lane westward and eventually separating Japan from her rich, stolen empire in the Dutch East Indies.

The landings on Kwajalein and Roi were preceded by "heavy and accurate" naval and aerial gunfire which silenced shore batteries, provided cover for the invading forces, destroyed or neutralized enemy airfields and swept the skies clear of enemy aircraft, Patterson said.

Capture of the Marshalls, Patterson pointed out, will "widen the cracks in the outer defense ring" of the Japanese empire and these cracks may clear the way for advances on the Philippines or Tokyo itself.

Patterson noted that although the bulk of our naval force is now in the area west of Hawaii, the Japanese fleet has not put in appearance and is showing evidences of "timidity." He said as the advance westward continues the security of the western hemisphere will be increased. The island defense forces for this hemisphere now have been moved 2,000 miles farther west, he said.

PART OF SOUTH ISLET NOW IN HANDS OF U. S.

Airfield and Anchorage Are Keys to Kwajalein. Largest Atoll

(By Associated Press) PEARL HARBOR, Feb. 3.—The four-day-old United States invasion of the heart of the Marshalls, a tactical surprise so complete a vital air base for bombers and fighters was captured in less than a day, threatened the Japanese today with imminent loss of a fine harbor.

The four-runway air field at Roi, on the northern end of Kwajalein atoll, was overrun Tuesday, the second day of invasion and on the same day that forces went ashore at that point. The deep anchorage of boomarang-shaped Kwajalein islet on the southern end of Kwajalein atoll is seriously menaced, with one-third of the islet already in American hands.

The air field and the anchorage are the keys to Kwajalein, world's largest atoll, promising the Americans investment of all its more than 30 islets surrounding a 655-square-mile lagoon.

Capture of Roi air field and invasion of Kwajalein islet were announced yesterday by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Enemy Is Fooled Admiral Nimitz' Wednesday communique made clear the choice of Kwajalein for the invasion scene had fooled the Japanese. Parallel lines of eastern and western atolls make up the Marshalls, with Kwajalein near the center of the western group. Apparently, the Japanese had looked for an attack on the eastern group or at the southern extremities of either chain.

American marines landed Tuesday on Namur, adjacent to Roi on the northern end of Kwajalein atoll.

While marines and army veterans of the Aleutian campaign expanded their holdings on Kwajalein, invaded Monday, other fortified atolls in the mid-Pacific Marshalls were kept under heavy attack.

The most powerful fleet ever assembled and hundreds of planes added their shells and bombs to the more than 14,000 tons of explosives which have been poured on the Marshalls since Sunday.

Official reports, telling of moderate casualties and no losses among naval units, offered no grounds for belief the Japanese navy has put in an appearance or that the Nipponese air force has offered any serious challenge.

Marshall Reports Satisfactory to War Department

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Reports thus far from the Marshall island operations show the Central Pacific battle is "progressing favorably." Undersecretary of War Patterson said today.

He told a new conference the 4th Marine division and the Seventh Army division have encountered heavy resistance but casualties so far have been "moderate."

The landings on Kwajalein and Roi were preceded by "heavy and accurate" naval and aerial gunfire which silenced shore batteries, provided cover for the invading forces, destroyed or neutralized enemy airfields and swept the skies clear of enemy aircraft, Patterson said.

Capture of the Marshalls, Patterson pointed out, will "widen the cracks in the outer defense ring" of the Japanese empire and these cracks may clear the way for advances on the Philippines or Tokyo itself.

WILLKIE URGES HIGHER TAXES

Declares Nation Needs Tougher Program To Help Pay For War

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Wendell G. Willkie says the nation needs now "a tough tax program" of at least 10 billion dollars to help pay for the war or it risks losing "in debt the victory we have gained in blood."

He urged increased taxes "beyond any limit that we have hitherto imagined possible" in an address last night at the first of a series of New York Times forums on home front problems.

But when the war ends, Willkie said, the wartime taxation program must be revised with taxes "minimized rather than maximized."

"For, properly managed, and with encouragement to expand, our peace time economy will yield more tax income from relatively low rates, both individual and corporate, than from relatively high ones," he said.

Willkie, a prospective candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, observed in a question period following his address that when the people thought their representatives didn't heed them, that "they'll get new ones, and that's what I'm trying to do, too."

Fears Post-War Debt Willkie said inadequate war time revenue meant "we will transfer such a load of debt to the future as to jeopardize the very things for which we fight." He predicted a post-war public debt of more than 300 billion dollars.

Relief costs in Columbiana county amounted to $1,475 in January and should show further decrease this month, according to a report submitted today to the county commissioners by Mrs. Sara M. Andrus of Lisbon, relief director.

The February relief rolls show seven less cases and 19 less persons than the preceding month, the report listing 89 cases and 178 persons as relief recipients this month.

Butler, Knox, Wayne and West townships still remain free of relief cases, while Washington, Salem, Center and Fairfield townships, with 32, 29, 25 and 22 persons, respectively, head the county's relief load.

Deming Re-elected President of Salem Library Association

G. R. Deming was retained as president and other officers of the Salem Public Library association were re-elected at the annual meeting of the group Tuesday.

Charles McCorkhill is vice president of the board, Mrs. W. H. Dunn, secretary and L. B. Vincent, treasurer. Other trustees include Mrs. F. J. Emery, Mrs. E. S. Dawson, Eugene Young and Beman G. Ludwig.

The annual report of Miss Alice R. Gladden, librarian, was presented.

Wartime changes in industrial employment, civilian activities, transportation curtailment and shifting population have brought a decline in library circulation here, as well as nationally, the librarian said.

The local library, with 6,647 registered borrowers, has circulated 61,059 books in the last year. Largest daily circulation reached 421 and the average daily number, 201. The staff registered 640 new patrons in 1943.

Reference Room Popular More than 2,770 reference questions were checked and the library's reference room was used for study by 2,570 people. Club programs and school materials were made available in advance of the demand, while many telephone calls and impromptu questions were given immediate answers. The pamphlet file, picture collection and periodical index supplementing the book collection also was used extensively. The reading room, with its 300 books, was popular.

Army Graduating Less Officers Now

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The Army's officer candidate schools, with a total of 240,000 graduates, have been reduced to a monthly graduation list of 2,500 to 3,000 with a further cut in prospect, under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson reported today. The schools, which have enlisted men an opportunity to win officers' commissions, reached a peak of 23,000 graduates in December, 1942.

Between June, 1942, and November, 1943, almost 15,000 of the graduates were enlisted men sent home from combat areas for training. Four officer candidate schools established overseas have graduated about 2,500 men; however, the one in Australia is the only overseas OCS still operating.

In addition to OCS graduates, theater commanders overseas have given commissions directly to about 10,000 enlisted men, warrant officers and flight officers and a number of civilians, and the Army in the United States has commissioned directly about 9,000 enlisted men and 5,000 warrant officers and flight officers.

Of the 26 officer candidate schools now operating in this country, seven have been discontinued and four are no longer accepting candidates.

Yanks Have Battled To Within 500 Yards of City of Cassino

(By DON WHITEHEAD) ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, Feb. 3.—American troops had battled to within 500 yards of Cassino from the north today and Allied headquarters announced that the core of the Germans' Gustav line was "seriously threatened."

The Americans and French tore wide gaps in the Gustav line in bloody mountain fighting to the rear of the stronghold despite a hail of fire from German six-barreled Nebelwerfer mortars and self-propelled guns manned by a "last ditch" garrison fighting from the ruins.

At the same time other Americans were making a direct frontal attack on the ancient city guarding the Liri valley.

To the north Allied troops enlarged their Anzio bridgehead in the face of desperate German counter-attacks, one of which was "thrown back west of Littoria."

With their Cassino front near collapse the Germans were throwing attacks against the beachhead with increasing strength as new elements arrived in the enemy line.

THE TERMS NEED DEFINING

Loose use of the phrases "full employment" and "jobs for everybody" in discussions of post-war aims is a chicken that will come home to roost, unless it is penned up now.

This country already has had experience with it, in the matter of unemployment totals which were used during the depression. It will be recalled that they varied widely, depending on their source and what the source was trying to prove.

Objection was raised in some quarters to the practice of including unemployed persons who had not been recently employed, on the ground that their condition had no direct bearing on the comparative statistics of unemployment. At the other extreme, there were some who insisted that unemployment should be the total of all persons who were employable whether or not they were in the labor market. In 1935, even the relatively conservative estimates of AFL and the National Industrial Conference board varied month to month by as much as 4 percent, an important discrepancy in totals that reached almost 14,000,000.

It is statistically feasible, at least, to postulate a post-war employment total that would represent an optimum condition of production, yet leave a considerable margin of actual unemployment. The margin could be made still wider by the manipulation of statistics, with intent to prove that the unemployment was undeniably large. Such leeway in the use of figures being brought to bear as evidence on questions related to national policy is dangerous and confusing. Until the terms "full employment" and "jobs for everybody" can be defined, their use should be restricted. Even in the present war emergency, the United States does not have jobs for everybody; the nation should not blackmail its own future with demands that cannot be satisfied.

WESTWARD TO THE PHILIPPINES

Invasion of the Marshall Islands following days of relentless bombardment from ships and planes will test Japan's claim after its bloody defeat at Tarawa that the United States cannot afford the price of marching westward to the Philippines.

Japan cannot be more than partly right in that claim, because the United States cannot afford not to pay the price. That is something the Japanese will not be able to understand. No matter how stubbornly they resist, the islands commanding the approach to the Philippines will be retaken.

The Marshalls, which belonged to Germany before the first World war, were permitted to go to Japan in the peace settlement. That was a mistake in United States policy. The next mistake was in permitting the Japanese to fortify them in violation of its mandate. The final and worst mistake was to assume that they would not be used for the purpose the Japanese plainly had in mind all the time—an attack on Hawaii and the subsequent isolation and conquest of the Philippines.

Those mistakes now are being undone—the hard way. When the Marshalls have been cleared of Japanese power, the Truk Islands will be next. East of them lie the Carolines, and east of the Carolines lie the Philippines, which must be retaken before Japan can be brought to a showdown. There is no doubt about the strategy; there is only one way to undo the damage done by a generation of blindness to Japan's evil intentions.

DONT LOOK NOW

Despite the Roosevelt administration's insistence on more than 10 billion in new taxes and the congressional rebuttal that a fifth of that is than enough, it still is a surprise to realize that taxes have been increased substantially in the bill now scheduled for final passage.

This is a phenomenon in public psychology growing out of the public's present preoccupation with income taxes. In the people's present state of mind, it is simply incredible that a new tax bill is being put on the books which not only fails to simplify income taxes but adds to their burden in the brackets where most taxpayers now struggle to make ends meet.

Perhaps taxation has no place in it for the gentle touches of public relations. Of all times in history this would have been the psychologically perfect moment for congress to declare that in recognition of the trouble citizens are having with their complicated income tax forms it had decided to remove some of the complications before piling on more freight.

As it is, the wisest policy probably is to ignore the new taxes till the old scores are settled. One thing at a time is enough to handle. We must remember our obligation not to overdo in wartime and become a civilian casualty.

THE STARS SAY:

For Friday, February 4

THE SIDEREAL operations offer encouragement for the attainment of major objectives if such goal be attacked with reason, well-developed ideas and programs, and sustained by the definite cooperation of those in power and financial status. The social or professional angle may be productive of best results in seeking such cooperation, either in public or private ambitions. The cultivation of these through means of entertainment, domestic or even romantic approach is likely to bear gratifying results. New ventures and bold strokes are prolific.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of conspicuous accomplishments, with surprise ventures and audacious initiative assisting to advanced goals. In this, support from those in high places is assured, in both private and public affiliation, in which friendship, good feeling and social stability may be pushed to gratifying advantage. Cultivate personal prestige and popularity and fond objectives may loom large, with affectional or romantic engagements or celebrations probable. Do not complicate such by strife or impetuous emotional outbursts.

A child born on this day may be bounteously fitted for a successful, worthy and honored career, with much pleasure and comfort as well.

THE SOLDIER VOTE ISSUE

Deliberate misrepresentation of the soldier vote issue, aided by a great deal of wilful misunderstanding, has made it appear to many citizens that congress is deciding whether or not to give fighting men a chance to mark ballots in the election next November. Senate and house action on the matter to date has served only to add to the public's confusion.

The issue is not whether ballots are going to be marked, but whether the federal government, with a direct interest in perpetuating itself in power, shall be given permission to set aside state authority over elections. There is no member of Congress contesting the right of soldiers to vote.

There are many members, on the other hand, engrossed in the task of trying to arrive at a method of balloting which will be satisfactory to the defenders of state authority—and, what is even more important, will square with the Constitution.

Unless such a method can be found, the balloting of voters in the armed forces and in other war activities that make it impossible for them to be at home on election day will be a fiasco. States whose rights had been set aside would refuse to cooperate. There would be challenges on constitutionality. There would be disillusionment and bitterness which would do irreparable damage to national unity.

There is no party to the dispute without some blame, and that includes President Roosevelt, who has deliberately tried to put Congress in a hole by misrepresenting a constitutional problem as a simple question of giving United States citizens the right to vote.

The Germans will do well to reflect on the fact that after August, 1918, when Ludendorff told the German government that the war had been lost, Germany lost between 300,000 and 400,000 killed, and every one in vain—British Minister of Economic Warfare the Earl of Selborne.

If post-war planning siphons away American income to such a degree as to increase the average standard for the rest of the world at the expense of substantially reducing our average, then I say we will bring ruin upon ourselves.—David B. Robertson, president Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen.

We should settle industrial problems by conference or arbitral action, and the industrial civil war should be brought to an end before it destroys industrial civil liberty and turns over to state socialism.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president Columbia university.

The German people are strengthened in their attitude by the power of faith which we have observed and admired in Adolf Hitler since 1919. Every day we express the power of that faith by shouting the Fuehrer's name to each other, "Heil Hitler!"—Berlin radio.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Right Ways to Instill Good Habits In Child

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I KNOW OF no department of medicine which has made more improvement than the science of treating and training children. A recent book called Modern Ways With Children, by Dr. Elizabeth

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

B. Hurlock (published by McGraw Hill Book Company, New York), explaining the most up-to-date methods is therefore welcome.

It deals not so much with the technique of physical treatment—such as diet, bathing, clothing, teeth—as with the management of the child's mind and emotions in regard to such fundamentals as growth, eating, sleep, speech, habits, discipline, clothes, etc.

About one of the problems which confront many mothers—food likes and dislikes, Dr. Hurlock says:

"Studies of food dislikes in children have revealed that vegetables and cereals top the list. Most children like meat, potatoes, bread, and desserts of all kinds; but when it comes to vegetables and cooked cereals, they revolt. In most instances, urging the child to eat some food because it is good for him or 'will make him grow' is the basis of the trouble."

Improper Cooking

"Another offensive factor is the improper cooking of vegetables and cereals. Too often the flavor of the vegetable is gone and the taste flat because of overcooking or the use of too much water. In too many households the cereal is lumpy, and the child revolts against it not because of the taste but because of the texture."

"Now, a word about food that the child likes, especially his 'favorite food.' This is generally something that he is given only on special occasions and then in small amounts. The child likes this or that food not so much because of its taste as because of the circumstances under which it has been eaten. If he were allowed to select his own food, the chances are that he would have no marked taste likes or dislikes. He would, in time, learn to dislike food that was not good for him, because of the discomfort after effects. The chances are also that he would sooner or later learn to like food that is good for him, because he would feel much better after eating it."

Good Habits of Childhood

Here are the good habits of childhood:

"Eating habits, such as chewing with the mouth closed, good table manners, proper speed of eating, and adequate mastication of food before it is swallowed."

have 16 votes in a league of nations. All other countries would have one, excepting that the British commonwealth has six, counting its dominions and India.

Now that's one of the rocks on which President Wilson's hopes of American membership in the League of Nations crashed. The United States, in refusing to join the league, based its action in part on the fact that the British would have six votes to our one. This might result in the United States being voted into a position which it didn't like.

Whatever may happen in the matter of multiple voting power, the autonomy of the 16 Soviet republics will give the union great bargaining strength. That certainly is an amazing change in the position of a government which was barred from the League of Nations for a long time, and which was refused diplomatic recognition by many countries, including our own and Britain.

The Soviet reorganization also would seem likely to ease the way for reincorporation of the Baltic states into the union. As sovereign nations they have a right to join the Russian commonwealth.

GUSTAV LINE

in an effort to seal off the most serious threat to Rome.

Enemy Has Jitters
On the comparatively quiet Eighth army front along the Adriatic the Allies had the enemy jumpy and nervous. The Nazis were shooting off flares frequently at night, and there was much movement of enemy transport behind the lines.

(German nervousness frequently is a sign of an impending Allied offensive.)

The Germans were fighting grimly to halt Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army at Cassino.

But the Americans and French to the north widened the breach in the Gustav line to three miles, capturing several heights near Telesse. The Americans crossed the Cassino-Terelle road and Terelle itself was almost surrounded after capture of a series of heights on Mt. Castellone, a 2,300-foot peak where 100 prisoners were taken.

Cassino faced encirclement if the Germans continued to fight to the last man as they gave every indication of doing.

Clapper Is Plane Victim In Pacific

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Raymond Clapper, the well-known Washington columnist and political commentator, has lost his life in a plane accident while covering the invasion of the Marshalls in the Central Pacific.

A brief Navy announcement here said:

"The commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet has reported that a plane in which Mr. Raymond Clapper was a passenger, engaged in covering the Marshalls invasion, collided with another plane while forming up. Mr. Clapper was in the plane with the squadron commander. Both planes crashed in the lagoon. There were no survivors."

The exact time and place of the accident were not given.

Clapper, long associated with the Scripps-Howard newspaper syndicate, left here Dec. 28, going to Honolulu and Australia and subsequently joining the Pacific fleet.

He was 51 years old, a native of Linn county, Kas., and attended the University of Kansas before going into newspaper work. His wife and two children live here.

He began his distinguished career as a reporter on the Kansas City Star in 1916, later joined the United Press in Chicago, and was associated with that organization in Milwaukee, St. Paul, New York and Washington, becoming chief political writer for United Press and manager of its Washington bureau. Clapper subsequently became a special writer for the Washington Post and went to the Scripps-Howard newspapers in January, 1936, as columnist and political commentator.

He was a former honorary president of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, and sometime head of the capital's gridiron club. He was the author of the book "Racketeering in Washington."

RED UKRAINE

pre-war Rumania. Two days ago, the Germans began reporting a new offensive 50 miles east of Lutsk.

Moscow has not yet confirmed the advance. British military circles saw no reason for serious doubt, although one comment was, "I naturally want to hear the Russians confirm it because there always is a chance that the Germans might report a false withdrawal and then claim a recapture later."

The swift advance threatened completely to nullify Marshal Von Manstein's desperate stand around Vinnitsa and Uman in the western Ukraine, attacks which have been blocking the Russians from the Bessarabian border 60 to 70 miles away for several weeks. Should Vatutin sweep down the railroad from Lutsk to Lwow, the estimated 500,000 Germans in the Ukraine could be extricated only through Rumania.

From Lutsk, Vatutin also menaces Brest-Litovsk, one of the most important communication centers of pre-war Poland and key to the entire White Russian front.

'Mairzy Doats', Song Hit, Really Old Nursery Tune

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—This "Mairzy Doats"—the new novelty song which sounds as though you were hollering into a barrel through a mouthful of scrapple—is just another Philadelphia story.

Dr. Karl G. Miller, dean of the University of Pennsylvania college for women, says he's been using it in psychology classes for years "to illustrate the meaning of the 'meanings'."

"Mairzy Doats" turns out to mean "Mares eat Oats," when wrung out and dried. It's an old nursery song. The words used at Penn "are exactly the same as the words of the song except for the very first word, which is goatie instead of mairzy. For some reason, we like goatie better," says Dr. Miller.

The dean says the song craze has ruined the song for classroom purposes: "As soon as the students hear the first two words now they know the whole thing."

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED by ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

The rehearsal was in full swing. I must have dawdled longer than I'd thought in my room. They were far along the last half of the second act, working on a scene leading up to the climax.

Orne Paulsen, Wells Colby, Ione Welland and Sondra Marshall were having a quarrel center stage—almost a free-for-all—carefully supervised by Linwood, who was straddling a chair close by. Farther upstage, behind the line indicating the backdrop, Bill Parris was waiting for his cue with the three "reporters" who were to follow him in. The blonde and the couple playing the servants were sitting on a bench, way back at the left, watching the others. And at right front, on some mark made by Linwood or the stage manager, stood Linda, supposedly unseen and listening to what the four at center stage were saying—of her.

The scene was important, and the actors knew it. They had all memorized it already. Not one of them glanced at his sides. I noticed, as I tiptoed toward them noiselessly, too absorbed in what was going on on the stage to pay much attention to Stray.

And so I was totally unprepared when, just as I reached the seat I had occupied in the morning, he suddenly gave a ferocious growl ending in a shrill bark and shot past me and onto the stage in a frenzy of rage. Pushing against Linda, who jumped back with a startled outcry, and hurling himself toward the other actors.

At the same moment there was a deafening crash. And the telephone booth I had seen securely anchored in the files lay on the stage in a splintered heap, exactly on the spot where Linda had been standing not a second before.

Dead silence followed the crash. Even Stray had, miraculously, stopped barking.

Then everybody was running toward Linda with excited questions and exclamations. "Are you hurt?" and "How did it happen?" and "Gosh, you might have been killed!" and "What a blessing that dog barked!"

I was the last one to get to Linda. My feet wouldn't move for a while, and the word I heard repeated again and again, "Accident," kept hammering in my head—with a question mark.

But in the end I managed to drag myself up the ramp and to Linda, who stood beside the wreckage, staring at it wordlessly, with horror in her eyes. She didn't believe it was an "accident" either. "You've had a terrible shock, dear. Let's go to the inn, to our rooms, and you lie down for an hour," I said, putting my arm around her.

"She shook her head and said, loudly: 'No, thanks. I'm all right,' and under her breath: 'I want to stay here and find out—help me find out—'"

Linwood could only hear the first part. That's the spirit. You're a real trouper!" he praised. Adding, in general: All right. We go on with the rehearsal. Someone clear the mess away—and—Steve—you'll have to find us another telephone booth for tonight."

I began thinking of Stray's bark. Had the dog sensed what was going to happen—or why had he flown into that sudden rage? And why didn't he bark now? Where was he?

I looked around and, when I couldn't see him, made a few steps away from the crush around Linda for a clearer view of the stage. And tripped over something. The rope that had held the telephone booth, I discovered when I regained my balance. I picked it up, looked at it carefully.

It wasn't old and worn and frayed as it should have been if its breaking were the "accident" everyone was chattering about. It was quite new; only one strand of it was frayed. The rest had been cut, cleanly, with a sharp knife.

For the second time that day I forgot Stray, in a hot flash of anger and dread. I found myself back at Linda's side without knowing how I'd got there, dragging the rope with me, shouting excitedly: "Stop it! Stop calling it accident! Look at this rope! Look at it! It's cut! Someone caused the accident, by cutting it!" and brandished the evidence all around.

There were gasps—a forward surge to examine the rope. Linwood started persuasively: "But my dear Mrs. Turner—" and Sondra Marshall asked stupidly: "But couldn't it have torn that way, honey?"

"It could not. Not a strong, new rope like this!" I shook the "weapon" in her face. "Who did it? Who cut the rope so cleverly it wouldn't snap at once, but last long enough for Linda to stand under it and be struck when the booth fell? Who put her mark right under the booth. I'd like to know!"

I must have glanced straight at Linwood when I flung out the question, amounting to an accusation. At any rate, he thought it was meant for him and answered it.

"I made the mark, of course," he acknowledged with a great show of outraged righteousness. "I came in ahead of time and planned out the scene. But you don't imagine I—" He stopped. His eyes popped and his finger pointed triumphantly: "And my mark wasn't under the booth. There it is. Right where you're standing now!"

And there it was. A faint cross, smudged by the many feet that had walked over it.

We all stared at it dumfounded. And Linda, who had been silent up to now, suddenly came to life. "You're wrong. I was standing on the mark and it was where the booth lies now. You'll find it when the stage's cleared. I admit this one was there too. But it was so faint, I thought it was an old one and didn't count." She shook her head stubbornly when Linwood kept insisting she was mistaken.

In the end I lost my patience and flared up at him: "Oh, stop quibbling? Mark or no mark, it still wasn't an accident!"

"And I say it was," he flared back. "You are imagining things again, Mrs. Turner."

"Imagining" and "again." The words were all I needed to shed the last vestige of prudence and restraint.

I stepped close to the director, shaking with rage, and yelled: "Oh, I am? I'm imagining things again? I suppose you mean the way I imagined a tree was a man, or that a dog was sick on me, or members of my cast were asked would they sabotage my play? I've stood a lot. Mr. Linwood. Your weird reasoning among other things. But I'd be a worm if I'd let you and your friends go on with your practical jokes—such as trying to kill my star! This wasn't an accident. You know it, and the cut rope proves it. It was—well, you can call it sabotage, if you like. I call it attempted murder! Linda is alive this minute only by the grace of God and the barking of a small dog. And I want the police to look into the matter. The police, d'you hear he? Who's going to call the police for me?"

They all shrank back, staring at each other dumbly, fearfully. Only Sondra Marshall—I can still see

G. Forest Mason today announced his candidacy for County Commissioner, subject to the Republican primaries on May 9.

Mr. Mason was born and raised on the Lincoln Way farm three miles west of Lisbon and was one of the successful farmers and Guernsey cattle breeders of the county until he rented his farm three years ago.

While his ancestry dates back to the Whig party days, this marks the first time any political recognition has been asked.

Mr. Mason's background well qualifies him for the office he seeks. He was educated in the Lisbon public schools and Oberlin college and taught in the rural schools. He has been an elder in the Lisbon Presbyterian church for the past five years and has long been active in all range work of the county and served six years as steward of the Ohio State Grange. He is a member of the Lisbon Kiwanis club and of all the Masonic bodies and is a past master of Sandy Valley lodge at Hanoverton.

In 1919 he helped organize the Lisbon Guernsey Breeders' association, now known as the Columbiana-Mahoning association. He has been a director for six years and is now serving his second term as president of the Ohio Guernsey Breeders' association and was voted a life member in the American Guernsey Cattle club.

First elected in 1926, Mr. Mason is still serving as a director of the Sandy & Beaver Valley Farmers' Mutual Insurance Co. that carries forty-three million dollars of risks on farm properties in Ohio.

After leaving the farm, Mr. Mason was inspector for the Ohio State Highway Dept. and the last two years he has been a federal guard at the Ravenna Ordnance plant.

Mr. Mason was born in 1887, is married and has one daughter, a junior in Salem High school. The Masons reside on Franklin ave., Salem.

her, all in white again, a white slack suit this time—came forward, putting her hand on my arm and cooing plaintively: "But honey, you musn't! Think what it would do to Fern Cove!" And Linwood, mopping his face with a pale blue handkerchief, croaked hoarsely: "You don't know what you're asking! You'd ruin the chances of your play by a police scandal."

I didn't answer them, only repeated emphatically: "Who is going to call the police?" And Linda echoed the words in a softer tone:

"Yes, please; who is going to call them?"

"I shall," Orne Paulsen suddenly declared. "That is, if no one among the old-timers wants to do it."

"Don't bother. I'll do it. I only waited to give our director his chance. Out of politeness to him."

Wells Colby's tone was heavy with sarcasm, and the glance he bestowed on Linwood anything but flattering. "I know how you must have felt ever since you heard Alden and Vickery talk to me yesterday, Mrs. Turner. And for my own sake, and the sake of all of us who are innocent, I want this thing investigated and cleared up," he told me gravely.

"So do I," Bill Parris was speaking from a distance, on his way from the rear of the stage. He was walking slowly and carefully, as if he were afraid of hurting something he was carrying; a limp bundle of white fur with tawny overtones—"Stray!" I gasped, running toward him.

"I found him back there," young Parris explained gruffly with a nod over his shoulder. Someone must have kicked or thrown him against the wall. He's alive. But he's badly hurt, I think."

Quakers Will Seek Revenge In East Liverpool Game Friday

SALEM AFTER ITS THIRD SUCCESSIVE WIN IN GAME HERE

Quakers Take 43-37 Defeat
Three Weeks Ago In Close Contest

Seeking their third win in a row and their second this week, the Salem Quakers—fresh from a confidence-building win over Alliance Tuesday—will tangle with their powerful rivals from the Pottery City tomorrow night when Coach Bill Laughlin and his East Liverpool quintet will be trying to make it two in a row over the underdog Salem crew at the local high gym. A capacity crowd is expected to witness the battle, which starts at 8:45 p. m., following a preliminary tussle between reserve squads. Unquestionably the Pottery are rated to take Salem, as they have rung up nine wins in 11 games—several of their victories being over highly touted Ohio squads. Since the Quakers nipped Quaker hopes in the bud, 43-37, three weeks ago in Liverpool, they have engaged in six battles and have taken five by fairly easy margins. The night after Salem visited was the only disastrous one for Liverpool, as they were upset by a low Stuebenville Central Irish crew, 37-36.

Upset Stuebenville
They rebounded immediately and handed New Philadelphia's Quakers a 44-38 defeat. Probably the most impressive win of the season for the Pottery came down in Stuebenville against the previously-unbeaten Big Red. The Big Red had piled up a string of nine straight and was pining to knock off the Liverpool visitors with very little difficulty, but the Pottery pulled away in a close battle to win 56-47 in the last two minutes.

Other victories came in difficult games with Toronto, 48-33, and with an old rival from down-river, Bridgeport, a squad they dropped 57-37. Just this week the Pottery clinched their ninth win over a weak Midland, Pa., team 57-27.

Those figures—when summed up—give the Pottery a point-per-game average of 50 points since they last thought about Salem. However, East Liverpool has lost two games, and both defeats came at the hands of mediocre teams, Monaca, Pa., 32-29, and Stuebenville Central, 37-36—factors which make it obvious that the Pottery aren't untouchable and aren't always in top form. Salem's defeat at Liverpool was a result of numerous things, one of the most important and most obvious being the claustrophobic effect the small, compact Liverpool gym had on them. This objection will be gone tomorrow and may raise the chances of the progressing Quakers.

Another factor—in the same line—gives Salem a little added opportunity to take the Pottery. Liverpool will be playing on the Salem gym this time, and the local floor isn't one of the best for a strange team.

Launey-Appedisan Duo
Salem will not be at the same strength that they used in the previous year, as Ray Wise, one of the three lettermen, will not be playing. However, in the past two wins the Quakers have chalked up, it appears that Francis Launey and Jimmie Appedisan have the situation well hand and will be able to cope with their competitors both from the scoring end and the defensive angle. Liverpool, on the other hand, will come to Salem tomorrow with a different starting lineup from the one the Quakers faced several weeks ago.

Coach Bill Laughlin has shifted again—evidently to his advantage—and now starts letterman Bob Skidmore, Bob Brown, Bill Patterson, and Jay Springer with a new recruit to take the place of the late, but not lost, Joe Barrett. Barrett was a major contributor in the Quaker game, getting 10 points to place second in the money with sharpshooting Bob Brown, who garnered 17 points, pulling down high honors. Springer and Barrett have taken over the jobs previously assigned to Chuck Means, who is ill, and Jim Horton, who hasn't started since the Salem tussle.

In height the Quakers should have the over-all advantage, although Barrett will tower over Walter Brian by some two or three inches. Brian's performance at Liverpool would indicate that he can cope with the rangy Barrett, as he outscored him by four points.

Brown expects to start the same lineup he used in the Alliance game unless Norman Smith has completely recovered from a serious cold that has kept him partially inactive for some two weeks. The starting group at Alliance was Charles Schaeffer and Frank Enriksen at forwards, Brian at center, with Jimmie Appedisan and Francis Launey at guards.

Public Invited To Dinner of Kennel Club On Feb. 11

A dinner-meeting of the Columbiana County Kennel club, which will be open to persons interested in joining the organization, will be held at 6:45 p. m. Friday, Feb. 11, at the Lape hotel. Reservations should be made by those planning to attend with President J. C. Harshman or Secretary Fred A. Shaffer.

Officials of the club and committee members arranging for the AKC dog show here Feb. 20 have received entry blanks for the local exhibit. Blanks are available here, too, for the Butler, Pa., dog show on Saturday, Feb. 19, whose entries will come to Salem the next day to exhibit here.
